BOB SHULER DRAWS BIG AUDIENCE

Attacks Woolwine in Scathing Arraignment as Wet Candidate for Governor

AUDITORIUM IS FILLED

Declares Democratic Candidate Foresworn to Light Wine and Liquor Issue

The audience which came out to hear Fighting Bob Shuler Saturday night and which more than filled the auditorium of the chamber of commerce, seats being at a premium, was plainly delighted with his address, responding with applause to every point scored by the orator.

He has the wit of the typical southern evangelist and provoked many a laugh in spite of his serious theme, "Americanism and the Crisis in California." For instance, he said: "I am not in sympathy with these fellows that want to put this liquor business out of business because it is killing so many people. My idea is it is killing the right crowd and the widows would be a good deal better off with $1000 insurance."

Mr. Shuler handled Thomas Lee Woolwine, democratic candidate for governor, and the things he stands for, without gloves.

He pronounced Woolwine a leader of anarchy and lawlessness in his shameless betrayal of the constitution of the United States which he swore to uphold when he took the oath of office, pointing out that he is now openly declaring he is not in sympathy with the Volstead act, that he has never tried to enforce it and never will.

Mr. Shuler asserted that Woolwine is going about the state saying: "Come unto me all ye that are athirst and I will give you light wine and beer," though he knows neither he nor any other man can carry out such a promise lawfully until the constitution of the United States has been amended; that he is making the promise merely to get votes and make himself solid with the liquor interests and the underworld. The speaker pointed out that the election of Woolwine, and the defeat of the Wright enforcement act will not make lawful the sale of light wine and beer in California. It will merely put the state in the limelight as defying the constitution and will intensify lawlessness and bootlegging.

He said many pungent things which brought applause. He declared, for example: Thomas Lee Woolwine's father was a good man even though he belonged to the Ku Klux Klan. Were he alive now he would refuse to vote for his son because he is not a good American.

"A more dangerous man than the un-American foreigner is the un-American American, and more dangerous still is the good American who is absolutely fast asleep. If Americans were not asleep anarchists would not be speaking on the streets of Los Angeles. Who have their hands at the throat of this country? Our best citizens who are turning the country over to those devils.

"Why do not mothers name their babes Pontius Pilat? He did not crucify Christ. He said, 'I find no wrong in this good man,' and then he washed his hands and turned Jesus over to the mob. How much better are we when we sing, 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee,' and then kiss it goodbye and turn it over to the crowd.

"Our country today is being nailed to the cross, with lawlessness and crime everywhere. And we are guilty because we have stood off and turned the country over to perdition.

"Here in California we have before us the matter of the Wright law. If passed it will be nothing more or less than the expression of the people in favor of enforcing the laws of this nation, of protecting and preserving the constitution of the United States. If you are an American in your heart, you are for the Wright law. I do not see how any man who loves his country and his flag, and who expects his children to be good Americans can do anything else than vote for the Wright law.

"If I am a good political guesser we are in the most dangerous hour tonight in the history of California. Thomas Lee Woolwine has pulled the slickest political trick pulled for many a day. He thought the democrats wanted a governor so badly they would be willing to hold their noses and follow him to the democratic vote. He has, however, thrown out the sop to the wet crowd. They know Richardson has voted dry. Woolwine will have an avalanche of liquor votes and the old republican machine has taken him on. He will not need to build a new machine. He belongs to the one in power. He is a dangerous man in the possibility of his being elected. My prediction is that he will be defeated, but he would not be defeated were it not that there is coming an awakening as to the danger of the man and his tremendous following in this fight.

"But a more serious menace than the outlaws and degenerates and bootleggers that are wrecking the country is the public officials of this state who are not administering the law honestly and enforcing it according to their oaths of office. Woolwine's attitude toward bootlegging and prostitution has done the country more harm than the bootleggers. He has never denied the things charged against him or that he was a perjurer in violating his oath to enforce the laws and then making exceptions in regard to certain crimes as district attorney. His office has cost $200,000 exclusive of the cost of jurors, and he has been able to convict only 90 criminals in this great county during the last 12 months at a cost of nearly $4000 each conviction. He has proved that he is absolutely out of sympathy with law enforcement.

"I am going to give all I have to give to the putting over of this Wright law that we may redeem ourselves and belong to the American Union and keep the most terrific menace out of the governor's chair of California."

FEDERAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES OPPOSE KLAN

Denounce Organizations That Seek to Arouse Religious Prejudice

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — The federal council of churches of Churches of Christ in America, representing 20,000,000 protestants, today went on record as opposing such masked organizations as the Ku Klux Klan.

The administrative committee of the council has passed resolutions denouncing organizations whose members were "masked, oath-bound and unknown and whose astivities have the effect of arousing religious prejudire and racial anticipathies."

The Rev. Samuel M. Cavert, one of the general secretaries of the council, said the administrative committee had the Ku Klux Klan in mind in passing the resolution.

L. A. ANNEXATION FACTS ARE NOW CONSIDERED

Water Supply to Come Through Tujunga Reservoir Work

With the talk of annexation uppermost, Eagle Rock people are beginning to take renewed interest in the affairs of Los Angeles, with especial regard to the management of those facilities that will be affected for Eagle Rock, should annexation take place.

One of the chief problems to be solved in Eagle Rock, is the water supply. It has been asked, if this city should annex, would the Los Angeles supply be sufficient to guarantee a sufficient supply for Eagle Rock.

Los Angeles, as a matter of fact, is at the present time considering the passage of a water bond for $5,214,000, to be used in extensions and improvements of the Los Angeles water system. The point of interest to the Eagle Rock people, is the fact that $650,000 would be spent for the Tujunga reservoir, $486,000 in installing a trunk line in the reservoir, and $510,000 in installing a trunk line from the reservoir to the city mains, or a sum of $1,646,000 that would be expended in the district from which Eagle Rock would receive her supply, should she join with Los Angeles.

These facts were given out by Chief Engineer Wm. Mulholland, of the Bureau of Waterworks and Supply in Los Angeles. The intention is to run the trunk line, mentioned above, either down Colorado boulevard, or along Hill avenue. This would afford a convenient source for Eagle Rock consumers, in view of annexation, and would serve as a guarantee of a plentiful supply.

When considering the bond issue which the city of Eagle Rock proposes for a vote in the near future, voters, and taxpayers will be interested to weigh the two projects and find which means would be the surer for their financial interests.

BURGLARS PLUNDER FISHER'S

TAKE SACK OF MONEY

Robbers Act as Proprietor Starts to Wait on Customers

Checks and cash to the extent of $150 were stolen from the Fisher Variety store at 212 East Broadway on Saturday, and up to the present time nothing has been learned as to the whereabouts of the valuables.

Mr. Fisher, proprietor of this establishment, reported to the Glendale police that shortly before the theft occurred he had arranged his checks and cash in his banking sack preparatory to taking them to the bank for deposit.

As he was about to leave for the bank he was called to wait on a customer, whereupon he placed the banking sack in a place where he thought it would be perfectly safe.

Just about this time two Mexicans entered the store, and as there was no one at liberty to wait on them they moved about the store at will. A short time later the Mexicans departed. When Mr. Fisher went to look for his bank sack it was gone, and the belief is that the Mexicans carried it way with them.

FORMER EMPLOYER IDENTIFIES DECEASED

Says Man Worked With Construction Gangs for About Six Years

H. B. Jonnings, auditor of the L. R. Wattis Railroad Construction company, with whom the local authorities communicated in an effort to further identify the man who was killed on the Southern Pacific tracks at Mariposa last Friday, came to the parlors of A. C. Fillbach Saturday to identify the body.

According to Jennings, the name of the man was Chris Yonki, and not Yonkers, as reported by the Red Cross Employment agency. The man had been in the employ of the construction company for at least six years, says Jennings, and had been working in Utah, Wyoming, Nebraska and Nevada.

"In him we found a consistent man whom we respected and in whom we could place the utmost confidence," said the auditor.

Yonki left Utah about three months ago and was employed in the construction camp near Fullerton. He left that camp, intending to go to a camp near Big Bear lake, where the company is building a mountain road. That was the last Jennings heard of the man until his death was reported Saturday to the company.

According to Jennings, who says he has known the man for some ten years, Yonki was a Czecko-Slovakian. In all the years he has known the man the deceased had made no mention of his family.

Officer Gates, who took the man to the hospital, says the man continually called out, "Sister, sister, get my sister." When Gates asked where his sister was, the man only shook his head hopelessly.

Yonki was walking south on the Southern Pacific tracks, according to witnesses who saw the accident, with his hat pulled down over his eyes. He was carrying a bundle of blankets, which contained some clothes.

The peculiar feature of the accident is the fact that the man was struck in the back by the locomotive which he was facing as he walked. It has not been explained why the man did not heed the continued warnings which Engineer McComas of train No. 101 made.

Yonki's inquest will be held Tuesday morning at 9:30, at the Fillbach parlors.

Thieves Steal Sacks of Cement

Six sacks of cement, belonging to L. L. Tatch, were stolen Saturday from the construction job at the corner of Colorado and Verdugo road, according to word received by the Glendale police department yesterday. No trace of the missing material has been found.

PATTERSON AVE. PROJECT TO BE DISCUSSED

Special Meeting of West Side Association Called to Consider Widening

At a special meeting of the West Glendale Improvement association to be held tonight at the Columbus Avenue school, corner Columbus and Doran streets, one of the principal subjects of discussion will be the proposed opening and widening of Patterson avenue. This proposition has been under discussion for several months and it is hoped by those interested that some satisfactory solution may result from tonight's discussion. It is expected that the contending factions will be at this meeting in force and each will endeavor to show the opposition just how things should be done.

With regard to this proposition, C. W. Kinnan, an attorney, of 368 Patterson avenue, has issued the following statement this morning:

"To approximate number of lots included in assessment district, for instance: In the territory between Central and Columbus, and Arden and Milford, including both sides of the last two named streets, there are 38 lots to the block; then these six blocks would make 328 lots; then the territory between Central and Brand, and between Columbus and Pacific and the same north and south lines, would add about twice as many more lots, or make 984 lots; then territory from Pacific to Kenilworth, with same north and south lines would make probably 300 more, or nearly 1200 in all; deduction of some lots would have to be made for the school house property and the Patterson Avenue park, but the amount of the deduction is about made up by the greater number of lots west of Pacific, because of those lots being so much shorter than those east of Pacific.

"The assessment district is many times greater than the area suggested, probably all of ten times as great, but figure it, for instance at 5000 lots in all, which is far short of the total, it would still make the average assessment only a trifle over $10 per lot, and anybody knows the very large majority of the lots will be assessed for less than the average amount, rather than for more, because of the very heavy assessment that will be put against the Brand boulevard lots. Nobody can be assessed enough to hurt.

"The issue of the Glendale Press for Saturday, reported a lot just sold on Central, north of Doran, for $3250; the lots on Orange are not worth as much as similarly located lots on Central; therefore estimating these lots at $3500, is liberal; besides, there will be a fraction of each of these lots which will be salvaged by sale to adjoining property, and this sum will be used to reduce the total cost of the project.

"The Brand boulevard ground being business property purely, there will be no occasion to condemn an inch there, more than is needed for the right of way.

"Seventy-five dollars per lot is very liberal for the small portion taken off each of the corner lots by way of rounding them off.

"I also think that $7500 each for the two houses in question, if they are condemned, is very liberal; if the arrangements can be made with the owners to retain the houses and move them off, then the cost will be again reduced by a very considerable amount.

Four lots on Orange and 2 on Central at $3500 each $21,000
Seventy-five feet on Brand at $250 per foot 18,750
Two houses on Orange and Central at $7500 each ... 15,000
Ten corners rounded at $75 each 750
Total $55,000

Merchants' Team Pitcher Joins L. A.

Dewey Harris, star twirler for the Glendale Merchants, has signed a contract to play with Los Angeles next season, according to an announcement made today by Manager Cobb of the local club. He will report to Manager Bill Essick in about two weeks.

Harris attracted the attention of a Los Angeles Pacific coast league scout early in the season when Cobb invited him to watch the work of the local boy. The string of victories for the local nine has been credited to the excellent work of Harris and Heidler. Unlike the average pitcher, Harris is a heavy hitter, and his exceptional work at the plate as well as the box has resulted in a good many victorys.

Pollock Resigns as Assemblies' Secretary

As a result of the regisnation of Allan Pollock, senior class president, as secretary of assemblies, an election will be held at the high school this week to fill the vacancy.

After twice refusing to accept the resignation, the high school cabinet accepted it Thursday, when Pollock explained to them that he did not feel that he could successfully fill both offices.

Petitions circulated at the school last week nominated Harold Heacock, Stanley Johns and Fred Stofft.

Candidates and their supporters appeared at an assembly held this afternoon to discuss their respective merits.

As a result of a drunken row, which occurred in Los Angeles, across the Southern Pacific tracks from Glendale in the region of Los Feliz road, D. Mendez, a Mexican, is lying in a serious condition in his shack home. In this row Mendez received a number of deep knife wounds and before medical assistance could be given he had lost a large quantity of blood. It is believed that he will live.

According to Mendez, Rosito Amador, who was also in the shack at the time of the trouble, wielded the knife. The stabbing grew out of an argument, which became more heated as the whiskey got in its work.

JUDGE CRUZAN LEARNS ABOUT THAT LIGHT

Man Who Had No Red Tail Light Explains by Mail

Judge Cruzan and Eagle Rock folk were laughing yesterday about the receipt of a letter directed to Judge Cruzan, which was a fitting one to be read on Friday, the 13th. The text of the epistle follows:

"To the Honorable Judge:

"I am righting you in regard to my summons to appear before you in answer for violating sec. 16-13A 24A.

"I plead guilty. I had been up in Inyo, Co. to see my brother that is crippled, and my muffler blew out I thought I could get home before I got it fixed.

"I did not know I had to have a red tail light as I had seen lots of trucks using lanterns that was not red and I would ask you to make the fine small as you can and further deem it a great favor if you can send the amount the fine is to me at Chino as I am working on a dary their and it is hard to get a man to take the place on a dary. hoping you can grant me the favor, I remain

"L. M. VAN HORN,

"P.S.—Address me at Chino."

The letter was placed on file with the charge filed against Van Horn, and the court is considering the proper action to be taken, and in any event, will make sure that any communication to Van Horn will be sent to Chino, and not to Glendale or Santa Monica, or some other likely place.

LEGION HAS ONLY STARTED TO FIGHT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 16.—The American Legion has only just started to fight "for adjusted compensation," Hanford MacNider, national commander of the organization, declared in addressing the opening session of the Legion's third annual convention here today.

The legislation will pass, MacNider said, "because it is right, and right always prevails."

"A great, well financed attack by interests which we cannot help but feel are sordid and selfish, has given us one little setback," he said. "But those who represent the people in Washington are with us by great majorities."

HOLLIS MOYSE AIDS CALTECKS

Students of Glendale High are rejoicing over the football victory won by the Caltecks of Pasadena over Whittier last Saturday, perhaps because a former Glendale High student, Hollis Moyse, is on the team as right tackle and gave a very good account of himself in the game. He played throughout the game, only three others beginning and finishing with the team. Whittier beat them last year and it has been freely predicted that it would trounce the Caltecks this time, as its star player, Suggett was on the team.

METHODIST APPOINTMENTS

School Trustees Liability Limited

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 16.—Widespread panic among boards of school trustees in the state on the subject of liability for accidents to children in buildings and on playgrounds is due to the fact that reports of the recent decision on the subject failed to say that trustees are liable only here negligence is proven.

This is according to Job Wood, deputy superintendent of public instruction, who says there is no need for alarm.

AUTOS COLLIDE ON BRAND; WOMAN INJURED

Florence Anderson of Los Angeles Is Treated at Local Hospital

Florence Anderson of 10444 Pershing street, Los Angeles, was injured in an automobile collision that occured at the corner of Brand and Park, at 3:15 yesterday afternoon. After being given first aid treatment in Glendale Miss Anderson was removed to her home in Los Angeles.

EAGLE ROCK IS WAITING FOR STATION

Five Years Ago Glendale-Montrose Line Made a Pledge

It is five years since the Glendale Montrose railway was granted a franchise by the city of Eagle Rock. It was five years ago that the Glendale-Montrose railway promised to erect a waiting station for passengers.

The waiting station is still in abeyance, but is reported on the way, to come into being when the last bit of red tape has been wound upon it, and the last railway official has placed his stamp of approval upon the specifications. Last week, P. L. Hatch, general manager of the line, sent a communication to the city, in which he stated that it "is very difficult to explain, in a way that all parties interested may understand," why there has been so much delay.

The city hall files are augmented by a considerable amount, with the letters from time to time sent by the railway company in regard to the building of one waiting room, dating back as far as 1917. The city has been forbearing, however, and whenever the communication has requested cooperation, it has been given. In fact, the city has not acted in any way that might retard action in the matter, the records show.

The latest word is that the plans and specifications are to be presented to the vice-president of the railway company as soon as he is at liberty to consider them, having had his time taken up with matters outside the city. It is hoped b. P. L. Hatch and the board of trustees that these specifications will be presented at the meeting tonight, but it depends upon the action of the railway officials.

It is understood that these plans will call for the establishment of a comfort station in connection with the waiting-room, which will call for the approval of the board of trustees. The city fathers have promised to cooperate in this respect in every way possible, when the plans are presented.

HOME COMFORTS FOR ALL HOBOES

Things are looking up for the hobo. Glendale police department has just ordered a lot of brand new, fluffy and warm blankets for the various cells of the city's jails, and the prospects are that from this time forth there will be a full house. With free feed and a nice warm bed, the crooks and hobos of the country will doubtless head straight for Glendale.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN AUTO

A valuable automobile, which was stolen Saturday from S. S. Beran of 305 South Brand boulevard, was located by Glendale officers at an oil station located on Glendale boulevard at the Ivanhoe hills. The machine has already been returned to Mr. Beran.

GLENDALE HI AND COVINA TO PLAY HERE

Lightweight Team to Have First League Clash Tuesday Afternoon

HARD GAME EXPECTED

Special Interest in the Event Because of the Local Organization's Strength

The light-weight football team of Glendale high will have its first league game of the season Tuesday afternoon, when it will play Covina's team on Moyse field. This aggregation of local talent came so near to winning the championship last year that its chance to capture that honor this season is exceedingly good. The game is therefore of special interest to the school. It will begin with the following local line-up: Center, Jeter; rg, Peck; lg, Hoyt; lt, Monroe; rt, Searle; re, McAllister; le, McIver; qb, Glen Roberts; lh, La Franchi; rh, Willard Roberts (captain); fb, Badour.

Following is the schedule:
Oct. 17—Covina at Glendale.
Oct. 24—Glendale at S. Pasadena.
Oct. 31—Citrus at Glendale.

They proceeded to the Verdugo hills. The first deer was sighted at about 6 and after an exciting half hour chase they finally killed it.

Many local hunters have reported a herd of deer back of Dan Campbell's ranch in the Verdugos. One of the herd was recently chased into Glendale by a pack of dogs, where it ran into a post. The impact caused the animal's death.

ELDER WARREN ENDS MEETINGS

Elder Warren closed a two weeks' meeting at the Seventh Day Adventist church, corner Isabel and California, last night, preaching one of the best sermons of the series. It was mere in the nature of an appeal to his audience to lead the better life from the standpoint of right living.

"We are in the latter days of time," said Elder Warren, "and it behooves us to pay more attention to the finer things of life, and stop long enough from business worries to pay more attention to our families and religion. There will come a time when we will have to stop—stop long enough to die anyway, and we had better stop a while now and pay more attention to our personal affairs," continued the minister.

"We have about come to the close of time. I don't know how long it will be, but one thing I am certain of and this is, we are in the last days, according to the Bible. So it behooves us to prepare for the end."

On Sunday afternoon Elder Warren accompanied a large number of young people on a hike to the hills, where they enjoyed dinner among the live oaks. Elder Warren also gave a short talk to the young people; urging them to form strong characters and to mould their lives in such a manner that when age comes creeping on apace they will have nothing to regret.

REVIVAL OF OLD WAYS ADVOCATED BY FATHERS

Would Protect Girls from Breath of Suspicion by Chaperones

The question of how to safeguard young people in the matter of amusements, particularly the girls, is agitating the fathers even more than the mothers. So far as the majority have given expression to opinion it favors a return to the old plan of chaperones. It is argued that a girl's reputation is too precious a thing to be blown upon by the breath of suspicion because of having been seen unattended by a chaperone in any place open to criticism.

The crime of modern parents is that they are too indulgent and disposed to gloss over the improprieties of the age until they have become bold to the point of indecency. The majority of our girls are sweet and wholesome. But we need a revival of old fashioned standards of propriety and behavior. Our girls should realize that the bloom is off the peach when they openly permit such familiarities on the part of young men as have been complained of in connection with recent exposures.

"WHAT IS A CHRISTIAN?" DISCUSSED BY REV. COLE

The subject, "What is a Christian?" was preached upon Sunday morning at Central Christian church by the pastor, Rev. C. A. Cole. He took as text, Acts 11:26, "And the disciples were called Christians first at Antioch."

Rev. Cole's sermon in part is as follows:

"True Christianity may be described as a trinity. It includes doctrine, an experience and a life. It demands the homage of the intellect, that the truth shall be believed. It requires the homage of the heart and that truth shall be felt. Then a Christian is a man with a creed, an experience and a life.

"Many mistakes have been made here by both friends and foes of Christianity. Some have insisted it was only a creed. Others have insisted that it was only an emotion to be felt—unmindful of the fact that a faith always lies back of and gives rise to emotions. Others, that it is only a morality, ignoring both its faith and experience.

"A Christian is a man with a creed. It is popular to sneer at creeds. Talk of them as if they were the husks and useless wrappings of precious kernels to be stripped off and thrown away. If the Bible is not true it is not binding. But if its teachings are true, then they are fixed. A man who doesn't have beliefs and convictions, founded on testimony from true men, is usually driftwood on the turbulent stram of life.

"We need positive convictions on fundamental teachings of truth in these days when it is popular to preach a religion of ethics and mental therapeutics which cares not whether Christ is just a good man or is the Son of God from on high. I'll tell you all strong men of both yesterday and today have been men of positive beliefs. It must be so. A man uncertain in his footing cannot do any earnest and worthwhile work. A man has got to be able to say, 'I know whom I have believed.' Then he has his foot upon a rock.

"A Christian is a man with a creed. That creed is the unchanging and omnipotent Son of God. 'Believe on the Lord Jesus.'

"A Christian is a man with an experience. Some have tried to persuade men that religion was only a creed. Thus the hatred for creeds.

"About all that is required in some quarters today is that a man shall pay his pew rent and keep out of jail. But paying and being decent morally in daily walk is not all. Christ and His words must be inside of us. We must know Him and be in love with Him and let Him dwell in us.

"I know that emotion is not character, nor sentiment. That having an impression is not the same as obeying it. I know that some will weep over a book of martyrs and almost thing themselves as heroic as though they had died at the stake themselves.

"A Christian is a man with a life. We've heard it said: 'No matter what a man believes if he lives right.' There never was a greater fallacy. Then if a stream is pure it does not matter if the mountain be polluted.

"The fact is, a man's life is the outcome of his creed. 'As a man thinketh in his heart so is he.' So a Christian man is one whose life accords with his creed and experience. Our religion must be lived. One truth lived is more than ten believed.

"Time was when the question of all was 'what do you think?' That day is post. Then came a time when the great question was 'how do you feel?' But the emphasis is now changed and has gone further. The test question today is 'how do you act?'"

The Bible school attendance in the morning was the largest yet recorded and it is believed that the goal of 500 will be reached and passed by January 1923.

At the evening service Rev. Cole passed out copies of the recent editorial which appeared in the Daily Press on "While Parents Slumber" and answered a question sent him: "Who is responsible for the recent disgraceful dance put on by high school students in a neighboring city?" The answer was that the parents should not be given all the blame. "Part of it rests on society," he said, "that tolerates and encourages such things and part on the high school that allows public and promiscuous dancing at some of its functions. The church, also, is not scatheless, for it should train its members, both parents and young people, so that they would not countenance or participate in such questionable amusements."

The sermon of the evening was on the topic, "Lord's day or Sabbath, which should the Christian observe?" The pastor read from the Scriptures to show that the Sabbath was instituted as a day of rest for the Jews 30 days before the delivery of the ten commandments to Moses on Mount Sinai; that in the history of the 2500 years up to that time since the creation, not one solitary mention of the Sabbath or command for its observance is found; that, according to Paul, the old covenant, which included the establishment of the Sabbath, the laws of Moses and the ten commandments was "nailed to the cross," and done away with; that the Sabbath was for Jews only and none but Jews were ever commanded to observe it; that we are now living under grace and not under the law; that there is no command, anywhere in the New Testament for the observance of the Sabbath or the Lord's Day; that Christians observe the Lord's day in honor of Christ, the head of the church, who rose from the dead on that day and whose church was founded on that day, at Pentecost; that the early church met "on the first day of the week to break bread," and listen to preaching and to take their offerings; that Paul more than once warned his followers against Judaizing teachers, who insisted on the observance of the old law, especially in respect to circumcision and the observance of feasts, new moons and the Sabbath days, which law was but "the school master to lead us up to Christ," and this school master was no longer necessary after Christ had come, therefore was done away with.

YOUNG SCOUTS TELL OF WORK AT CAPITAL

Delegates to Sacramento Report to Kiwanis Club on Visit

If anyone doubts what kind of work the Boy Scouts are doing, they should have been at the meeting of the Kiwanis club when three young scouts made speeches setting forth from different angles the great work being done by the scouts. These short speeches are herewith produced because they throw light upon the wonderful work being done to develop the manhood of the conntry.

These three boys, Robert Eastman, Clifford Walcott and Dallas Kalbaugh were sent to the Boy Scout conference at Sacramento, and how they gave an account of themselves may be learned from the following speeches:

THE BOY SCOUT
By Dallas Kalbaugh

The subject that I have to speak on is one of which every person should be interested: "Boy Scouts". During my vacation it was my privilege to be one of the four scouts to attend the conference held in connection with the state fair at our capital, Sacramento.

Our first evening we were entertained at a banquet held at the Grill cafe at which there were about 110 scouts from all parts of California. After dinner, George Livings sang a song entitled, "I Have Ten Little Fingers and Ten Little Toes," after which we had community singing and yells. Mr. Hill of the Sacramento council, gave the cordial welcoming address followed by the speaker of the evening whose subject was, "How to Train Your Life." One of the main topics he brought out was to pick your occupation early and when you pick it be determined to be the best in your town. If you are going to be a street sweeper, be the best; if you are going to be a mayor, be the best the town has had.

There were many wonderful things to be seen at the conference, but the most remarkable to my mind was three deaf and dumb Eagle scouts sent to represent the deaf and dumb troop of Berkeley, and the scoutmaster of this troop said that there were only about five boys who were not above first class, as they had just been rated in to the troop, and it seems to me that if deaf and dumb boys can be trained to be such helpful citizens that a boy with all of his faculties ought to reach a standard which would surpass any generation the world has yet produced.

THE SCOUT EXHIBIT
By CLIFFORD WALCOTT

The subject which I am going to speak on is the exhibits made by the scouts on the Sacramento fairgrounds.

The first one I shall tell you of was a signaling tower made by the Orange county council. The tower was about thirty feet high made of bamboo and rope and strong enough to bear the weight of several boys. At the bottom there was placed several paintings and collections of various articles made by the scouts.

The Bakersfield council brought their own materials and erected a bridge about six feet long, strong enough to bear the weight of taree boys.

It seems that the Sacramento boys were held back because they had only a small exhibit, but one that was worth while. It consisted of a model camp with every kind of tent known on it and streams and trees. There was also two maps made on linen of a half mile radius from the center of town. These were said to be very accurate.

Another thing the scouts did was to put on a number of stunts in front of the grandstand, between the horse races. A number of them were very clever, but I will tell you only of the best.

A signal drill was given first by several scouts which went off fine.

The next thing was a pine tree patrol stunt. In case you do not know what a pine tree patrol is, it is a small wagon which, when taken apart makes a table, two benches and other things used in the camp. They took this down and fixed it into the various articles, put up three pup tents, set up a wireless with the aerial, and came to a full salute, fired the cannon and raised the flag and took it all down and packed it up in ten minutes.

The next thing was the first aid drill given by the boys from Glendale. We gave eight bandages with the triangular bandage and made a stretcher in six minutes.

The boys from the Bay district put on an interesting drill. They made eight tents in nine minutes. That's real speed.

The last thing to be put on was a first aid drill, put on by Sacramento. They showed the fireman's lift and drag and several other bandages.

NAVIGATION ACTS

were enacted by England for the American colonies between 1600 and 1663. They provided that all goods carried to and from the English colonies must be on English ships, three-quarters of the crews of which had to be English subjects. Certain commodities, such as rice, tobacco, and sugar, could not be exported to any port outside the British possessions. No European goods except salt and wine could be imported unless the ship first stopped at England to pay duty.

A short business session was held in which the following officers were elected: Miss Mildred Thompson, corresponding secretary; Miss Eleene Truitt, chairman of hospitality committee and Claude Whitfield, second vice president.

After this, a splendid program was given by members of the club. The opening number was a series of vocal solos by Claude Whitfield. He sang, "Smiling Eyes," by Miss Hazel Linkogel, well known Glendale violinist, and "Since We Parted," by Frances Allitson.

Miss Reba Phillips played two piano solos, the first being "Caprice" by Kreisler, and an encore number.

Miss Elizabeth Mottern sang delightfully, "Brown Eyes," "Welcome Sweet Wind," by Cadman; "The Pastoral," by Pearl G. Curran, and "The Nile," by a French composer.

This splendid program was followed by the reading of several current events by Miss Margaret Richardson, and the hostess, Mrs. Rigdon, served delicious refreshments.

The guests were largely from the Wilson intermediate, where Miss McPherson is much beloved by teachers and pupils with whom she has been in contact.

It was an informal social afternoon with a surprise shower for the honoree, who was persuaded to join in a game in which guests were blindfolded and in that condition asked to locate the place in a huge ring for the setting of a gem. When Miss McPherson was released to see the place upon which she had pinned the solitaire she found herself confronting a cupboard filled with an array of miscellaneous gifts. The house was prettily decorated with the flowers and an ice cream cake was served by way of refreshment.

The guest list included: Miss Carrie Noble, Miss Frances Jackson, Miss Ada Sallstrom, Miss Edna Duffey, Miss Elsa Brenneman, Miss Josephine Chambers, Miss Alice Lookabaugh, Mrs. Du Charme, niece of the hostess, Miss Carol Duncan, Miss Murray Longley and Mrs. H. A. McPherson.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR SLAUGHTER

Regardless of the fact that the Turks have signed an armistice, there is no tinge of glory in the situation for any of the European powers. Responsibility for the awful slaughters perpetrated by the Turks, rests in some measure upon each of them. They could have prevented the butcheries. They elected to stand idly by and permit the forces to gather, when they must have known that the climax would be exactly that which has come to pass. But for a blind and indecent selfishness on the part of European governments, the Turks, instead of being triumphant now, would have been driven long ago from a region in which for centuries their presence has been a disgrace, and a menace to the peace of the world. They are back now, victors. They have outgeneraled their more enlightened neighbors, for these neighbors deliberately blinded themselves to the truth. When Greece undertook the, to her, impossible task of beating the Turks, the allies ought to have stopped the movement. Most abjectly they failed to do so. They are therefore to blame for the consequences. They could not agree on a plan of overcoming the Turks, 'est one among them, in the final settlement, might receive advantage over another. They were willing, though, that Greece should be allowed to attempt to pull chestnuts out of the fire, hoping thereafter to wrest the nuts from the scorched paws of the Greeks. It was all a miserable business.

The best that is to be hoped is that the Turks may refrain from their accustomed pastime of slaughter. Whether or not they do this seems to depend upon the Turks alone. If they choose to kill, burn and ravish, the nations will deplore. Correspondents will write harrowing details. That will be the end of it, until at some future time the Turks observe that their swords are sharp and that there still are unarmed victims available.

THE WRIGHT LAW

One of the political advertisements to be observed in the public prints is condemnatory of the Wright law. The statements that campaign managers deem worth paying for at regular rates, are ascribed to a judge. They affirm that if the measure were passed, all the police authority of the state would have to be devoted to running down violators of the Volstead law, while thugs, thieves and other violent persons would be at liberty to work their several wills. Which, with all respect to the judge that he may deserve, is about as shallow and specious nonsense as ever emanated from so dignified a source. It stands forth as a specimen of buncombe not worth analysis.

There is no question of prohibition now before the people. If voters are led to believe that such a question is up to them for decision, they are being befooled by politicians. There was such a question. It was settled when prohibition was made part of the constitution. There remains to every law-abiding community the plain duty of being guided by constitutional requirement. The mere expression of personal opinion that the provision ought to be changed, will not have the slightest effect towards changing it. The thought that the state ought not to assist in enforcing the regulation, naturally arises in the mind of the bootlegger, hawking his poison wares. Give such a thought, as a setting, the mind of a jurist, and it appears as an anomoly little less than grotesque. It is a confession that the lawless element should be left to undisputed domination, that the weak should not be protected, nor the wicked rebuked. There is no more reason for ignoring the prohibition law than for ignoring the law forbidding any type of crime.

The Wright law is designed to help in making the constitution effective. Therefore it is a good and proper measure, and no band of alcoholic devotees will be permitted to defeat it.

HELPING EUROPE

Says each of a syndicate of papers: "It is announced that the United States will discourage loans to European countries, including private loans by bankers." It then proceeds to defend this course.

At just the same time, there comes from the administration, the direct statement that constant reiteration of the assertion that it is doing nothing for Europe, is unfair and deceiving. The truth is that billions of American dollars have gone and are going to Europe, with government sanction. The United States is not seeking to set up a financial tyranny such as the implied attitude would indicate to be its purpose. On the contrary, it desires to encourage the industries of Europe in the effort at rehabilitation. This country has a large proportion of the gold of the world. It has matchless potential wealth. But people are too wise to believe that their own prosperity could be promoted by crippling the business, and adding to the burdens of other peoples. To lend money to Europe is not wholly an altruistic plan. Money is lent on proper security to solvent individuals and concerns, and by the lenders, the transaction is recognized as a good investment.

The effort to set up the belief that because the United States is more fortunate than other powers, it intends to harass and hinder those others in their struggle back to normal, does both its morals and its acumen an injustice. This country is not a miserly institution. It is not trying to play the hog. It is willing to help, because it is able to help, and intelligent enough to see the utility of doing so.

Why does a sin look twice as big to a man before he commits it as it does afterward?

Somehow, a talkative woman never takes advantage of the many opportunities her husband gives her to quit.

If after years of toil a man wins success, some wise fool is sure to come along and tell him how he might have done it in half the time.

HER TERRIBLE TROUBLE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

This is a story which I heard from a woman acquaintance who said she had it from her mother.

It suggests a good many things and will be read by not a few women with peculiar appreciation.

Dr. Frank Crane

It is of a man who was of that domineering, jealous and petty type that is all too common. He had that suspicion of womankind that some men think to be wisdom.

He was always setting little traps to catch her. He would listen in at the telephone and had a pleasant way of going through her letters on her desk when she happened to be out of the house.

If she would call him up at the office he would not answer right away, but wait to see if any one was with her and he could overhear her conversation.

If she put on some new and attractive article of apparent he kept his eye open to see whether she was not out to lure some other male.

He lay awake a good deal to see if she did not talk in her sleep and say something that would give him a clue.

When she returned home on any occasion she had to give a very circumstantial account of all the places she had been and all the people she had met.

In other words he was the kind of gentleman that is referred to as a foxy guy.

As a matter of fact, however, his wife was a simple and perfectly innocent soul. She was a good deal of a child and had no notion in the world of doing anything wrong or even wanting to.

Then came the tragedy.

One day the husband discovered a little drawer in her writing desk that was locked. He tried to open it and could not. He asked her where the key was. She said she had it. He told her to give it to him and she declined. He wanted to know what was in the drawer and she would not tell him.

Consequently it was Oho! and At Last! for him. Here was the guilty secret. All along he had suspected that there was something.

Straightway that little locked drawer possessed his whole imagination. He thought of it in the office, at the breakfast table and when he tried to go to sleep in bed.

He made a strenuous attempt to be decent and mind his own business, but it was no use. He simply had to get into that drawer by hook or crook and find out what this terrible thing was that he knew was going to break up his home, wreck his happiness and reveal the terrible hidden crime of this woman whom he had taken to his bosom.

And so one day when she was visiting her Aunt Mary in the next town he got a chisel and broke the lock to the drawer.

And when he had opened it and looked in he saw in one corner of it a little box of rouge!

Any ordinary white man would probably have sat down and cried, to think of this poor, dinky little sin which the dear soul had been trying to keep for her very own. Or he would have called in the iceman and given him a dollar to kick him around the room for fifteen minutes.

But all this man said was:

"Thunder!"

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

"PRONUNCIATION AND ENUNCIATION NEGLECTED"

says

Allen M. Cartter, Superintendent of Training of the New York Telephone Company

"There seems to be a lack of any real effort on the part of our schools to train children to pronounce their words properly and to enunciate clearly," said Mr. Cartter recently to the writer.

"Not only are young people unable to speak well, but they are unable even to read aloud properly. This is being proved constantly in my experience with applicants for positions with the telephone company," went on Mr. Cartter.

"Correct pronunciation of words and clear enunciation are a very important part of a child's training for efficiency in business and for success in life."

"What is the remedy?" I asked.

"It is a very simple one, but persistence is necessary in its application. Pronunciation and enunciation should be taught in school and home from an early age. Each child should be studied to discover his or her deficiencies and needs, and should then be given such drills as will be individually beneficial. Exercises for the proper control of the tongue, lips and teeth in speech should be conducted regularly. And," added Mr. Cartter, "they will be found to be a fascinating study."

"The telephone company must pay close attention to enunciation," I remarked.

"We are forced to," answered Mr. Cartter. "The number not in need of such training is very small. We drill all applicants on the making of vowel and consonant sounds. For example, it is necessary to have them pronounce the word four like fower, and nine like niyen, in order that the sounds over the phone may be unmistakable.

"I have a hobby on correct English," concluded Mr. Cartter. "A child in any grade of the grammar school or in any year of the high school should never be allowed to speak ungrammatically when reciting. And this applies to a history class as well as to one in English. In the lower grades we were made to read aloud. This is excellent training. It should be continued through a child's school career."

SONGS OF THE POST'S POETS

A Farewell—By Alfred Tennyson (1809-1892)

Flow down, cold rivulet to the sea,
Thy tribute to deliver;
No more by thee my steps shall be,
Forever and forever.

Flow, softly flow, by lawn and lea,
A rivulet, then a river:
Nowhere by these my steps shall be
Forever and forever.

But here will sigh thine alder-tree,
And here thine aspen shiver;
And here by thee will hum the bee,
Forever and forever.

A thousand suns will stream on thee,
A thousand moons will quiver;
But not by thee my steps shall be,
Forever and forever.

HOW THE CHEMIST MOVES THE WORLD

By DR. EDWIN E. SLOSSON.

The chemist provides the motive power of the world, the world of man, not the inanimated globe. Archimedes said he could move the world if he had a long enough lever. The chemist moves the world with molecules. The chemical reactions of the consumption of food and fuel furnish the energy for our muscles and machines. If the chemist can only get control of the electron, he will be in command of unlimited energy. For in this universe of ours power seems to be in inverse ratio to size and the minutest things are mightiest.

When we handle particles smaller than the atom we can get behind the elements and may effect more marvelous transformations than ever. The smaller the building blocks the greater the variety of buildings that can be constructed. The chemistry of the past was a kind of cooking. The chemistry of the future will be more like astronomy; but it will be a new and more useful sort of astronomy such as an astronomer might employ if he had the power to rearrange the solar system by annexing a new planet from some other system or expediting the condensation of a nebula a thousand times.

The chemist is not merely a manipulator of molecules; he is a manager of mankind. His discoveries and inventions, his economies and creations, often transform the conditions of ordinary life, alter the relations of national power, and shift the currents of thought, but these revolutions are effected so quietly that the chemist does not get the credit for what he accomplishes, and indeed does not usually realize the extent of his sociological influence.

For instance, a great change that has come over the world in recent years and has made conditions so unlike those existing in any previous period that historical precedents have no application to the present problems, is the rapid intercommunication of intelligence. Anything that anybody wants to say can be communicated to anybody who wants to hear it anywhere in all the wide world within a few minutes, or a few days, or at most a few months. In the agencies by which this is accomplished, rapid transit by ship, train or automobile, printing, photography, telegraphy, and telephone, wired or wireless, chemistry plays an essential part, although it is so unpretentious a part that it rarely receives recognition. For instance, the expansion of literature and the spread of enlightenment, which put an end to the Dark Ages, is ascribed to the invention of movable type by Gutenberg, or somebody else, at the end of the 14th century. But the credit belongs rather to the unknown chemist who invented the process of making paper. The ancient Romans stamped their bricks and lead pipes with type, but printing had to wait more than a thousand years for a supply of paper. Movable type is not the essential feature of printing, for most of the printing done nowadays is not from movable type, but from solid lines or pages. We could if necessary do away with type and press altogether, and use some photographic method of composition and reproduction, but we could not do without paper. The invention of wood-pulp paper has done more for the expansion of literature than did the invention of rag paper 600 years ago.

Print is only an imperfect representation of the sound of speech, a particularly imperfect representation in the case of English because we cannot tell how half the words sound from their spelling. But the phonograph gives us sounds directly, and the audion and the radio have extended the range of a speaker until now a speaker may have an audience covering a continent and including generations yet unborn. What these inventions do for sound, photography has done for the sister sense of light. By means of them man is able to transcend the limitations of time and space.

He can make himself seen and heard all 'round the earth and to all future years.

JOYFUL NEWS FOR MOTORISTS

[Brooklyn Standard Union]

The United States is 600 miles nearer the goal of a complete system of national highways as a result of the work of July, according to a report of the bureau of public roads.

The final goal is a construction of approximately 180,000 miles of improved highways, consisting of a network of trunk lines and secondary roads reaching into practically every county.

The work has just started, however, as the completed federal-aid roads now total only 18,299 miles, with 15,000 more in the course of construction.

The recent postoffice appropriation bill provided for a continuation of the federal-aid highway act by the appropriation of $50,000,000 for use in the current fiscal year, $65,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1923, and $75,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1924—a total of $190,000,000 which is to be matched by equal amounts by states which share in the distribution of these federal appropriations.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

There is comparatively small dispute as to existence of a spiritual body that survives the fleshly tenement. But the talk of an ethereal body, that leaves in the night, while the mortal frame reposes, doesn't go down. This ethereal body is said to float hither and yon, perhaps among the stars. It thrusts an inquiring etherial nose into the strange places of the earth. Then it learns that the material casing within which, during waking hours, it has its habitat, is about to awaken, and it hastens back to familiar quarters. Then the sleeper yawns, sits up, and mutters of the strangeness of dreams.

At a meeting of doctors in Rochester one representative read a paper in which he endeavored to put some of this stuff across, but he failed. The sane majority voted that the paper, and all mention of it, be expunged from the records. Evidently they regard medical science as a serious proposition, dealing in large measure with facts.

When Isadora Duncan arrived at Ellis Island she told of having met her husband the first time in the realm where the souls of the sleeping foregather in the still watches of the night. They let her get by and bring the fair tale with her. Well, no matter. Isadora didn't believe it herself.

It is because of these fancies some people get the rating of lunatics, while others visit the soothsayer, give up their good money and earn the title of saps.

Trial of criminal cases in advance is futile. It is likely, by creation of prejudice, to interfere with the real trial. The suppositious facts on which it is based may turn out not to be facts at all. Nevertheless, the known circumstances of a crime may be so startling, and the prospective defense so obnoxious, that there is no way to prevent the open registering of opinion. In this connection naturally comes to mind the case of the Phillips woman who is charged with murder for having lured another woman to a lonely spot and there beaten out her brains. As a scheme of defense, two methods have been proposed, and openly discussed. The first is a plea of insanity, which could not be construed as other than a confession of guilt. The second is by appeal to the "unwritten law." The second would include the attempt to blacken the fair fame of the victim. In common belief, this would be a crime only less heinous than the murder.

Chief of Police Kelley of Pasadena comes out in favor of the Wright law. He calls attention to the fact that it would empower 20,000 state officials to enforce the constitution, and add to the income of the state hundreds of thousands of dollars that now go to the federal government. At the same time it would cause no extra state expenditures. It is to be hoped that California has many chiefs of police of the Kelley type.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

Tut Henderson came in to be congratulated this morning because he had finally gotten the Sweetbriar order. He got his congratulations, pressed down, heaped up, and running over. But after Tut got away I began to ponder.

"Did Tut play what is technically known as a dirty trick?"

I have not decided the point even yet, which shows beyond question that my moral fibre is weakening. But I can produce one unrelated moral as a result of Tut's story.

"To be successful in business one must not overlook even the most minute detail." That is safe and sound, anyhow.

Old Man Sweetbriar hates tobacco with a virulent and hideous hatred. He happens to be so constituted that the slightest sniff of the weed makes him ill. His office people had rather commit harakiri on the new pastel rugs than let him catch them smoking on the premises. When they talk to him they keep their heads canted back as though they had stiff necks. For years Tut had been trying to land that account, but Hal Beazer had it sewed up.

"You know, Hal," said Tut. "He had rather smoke than do anything else in the world. He knows Old Man Sweetbriar hates smoke, though, and he has always kept from smoking in his office."

So Tut made a point of dogging Beazer on his calls to the Sweetbriar offices. Time after time he has managed to lose a bet or demand congratulations on some totally fictitious event or by some other hocus-pocus decoy a cigar into Beazer's mouth just as he hit the doorstep of the Sweetbriar office. Tut always insisted on lighting it for him, too.

"They were the best and biggest cigars in the world," Tut chuckled. "Beazer couldn't throw one of 'em away. It would have been like driving a knife into the left ventricle of his heart. Nor would he let it die, for a great cigar cannot breathe twice the breath of perfect life. He used to talk to Old Man Sweetbriar and puff just a little, very daintily, just enough to keep the glow a-glowing—while Old Man Sweetbriar turned green."

So Tut has the Sweetbriar account, and I'm glad of it, because business is business. But I doubt if I can acquit Tut of playing what is technically known as a dirty trick.

ARGENTINE IS STRONG FOR THE U. S.

Buenos Aires.—North American penetration in the Argentine is now an indisputable fact. It is evident in every class economic penetration, cultural penetration, legal, industrial—in methods, in customs, in everything, even to the vices.

In the economic order of the republic, many great banking institutions and many important American firms are definitely established. Five or six years ago there was not a single branch of an American bank here, and very few firms were all-American.

All the newspapers now carry large ads of products of the United States. The merchants talk of American commercial methods, and when they want to tell an employee to accelerate his activities, they advise him to be more "Yankee," to think rapidly and work quickly, to lose no time.

In court cases, when a lawyer has made a good case and can find no further precedent in Argentine law to support his argument, he cites laws or precedents of the United States. The judges themselves uphold their decisions by citing pronouncements of their American colleagues.

In cultural aspect also the Argentine people incline toward America, while European development is receiving less attention. The newspapers receive their news largely from American agencies, the United Press maintaining a leading position. Daily many columns are filled with news and comments of the United States.

The part of the population which understands and speaks English, which is large, reads the American magazines, papers, etc. A few years ago boxing interested nobody. Football was little known. Today there is as much enthusiasm for boxing and football, as well as for tennis and even baseball, as in the Anglo-Saxon countries.

The smart dressers attempt to copy American styles of wearing apparel. The devotees of the movies ape the customs and habits of the stars of the silversheet, where they see how people live north of the Rio Grande. Even in the cabarets, salons, and social functions, the tango is giving way to the fox-trot, the shimmy, and the "Boston."

Babson's Letter

Business Inflation Temporary, Says Babson

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Oct. 16.—Discussing the statement of certain bankers that the country is headed for another period of inflation, Roger W. Babson today issued the following statement, from his statistical offices at Wellesley Hills:

"For readers who are not bankers and economists, let me first explain in a simple language, what is meant by inflation. Men who are acquainted with the Babson chart of business conditions, know it is made up of two lines—first, a normal line, representing the permanent growth of the country which looks like a simple up-hill grade, and a second line which looks like the outline of hills and valleys. This second line represents temporary business conditions. For a few years it is above the normal line and then for a few years it is below the normal line. When the two lines coincide, business is normal; but when the second line is above the normal line, bankers say we are having inflation, while when this line is below the normal, bankers say we are having deflation. Just now they say that we are threatened with another period of inflation.

"The normal line of business is determined by the honesty, intelligence, industry, and thrift of the people. Comparing the health of business with the health of a person, we would say that the normal growth depends upon how we behave and how we take care of ourselves. The temporary business line, however, is affected by stimuli the same as our body. A stimulant may greatly exhilarate us, but we know the effect is only temporary and the reaction afterwards is very depressing—we feel much worse in a few days. This is the scientific explanation of the common saying, 'I feel like the morning after.' There are several reasons why the bankers may be right in saying that a temporary period of inflation is at hand. The country during the past year has been given three distinct stimulants, which should artificially help business and thereby cause inflation.

"The first of these stimulants was the immigration law passed a year ago and which was recently re-enacted. This is known as the 3 percent law, which limits the emigration from any country in one year to 3 per cent of the people now here from that country. It is practically a tariff on manual labor and on common labor. If continued, it will cause a famine of common labor in this country. It is the reason why the United States Steel corporation and other concerns are increasing the wages of common labor. If this law continues very much longer it will cause an inflation in the wages of common labor and thereby tend to bring about a general inflation.

"The tariff bill, which was passed last month, is a second cause of inflation. Whether or not such a tariff is good for the country is a political question and is not for me to discuss, but all students are agreed that it is largely a temporary stimulant. The tariff helps the manufacturer the same as the immigrant law helps the wage worker. But neither the tariff nor the immigration law increases production or makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before. The tariff will cause an increase in the price of goods the same as the immigration law will cause an increase in wages. Increasing prices and increasing wages, however, do not make the country any richer. The country becomes richer only as it has more houses, more bushels, more tons, and more yards of goods. Marking up the price of goods accomplishes nothing. With about a thousand dollars you can today buy a million German marks and become a millionaire, but you are no richer than before.

"The third event that will help bring on the inflation, happened last week when England gave in to Turkey. England has been the one great country outside of America which has stood for law and order; for the payment of debts and sound currency. The lack of France and Italy to back up England on the Turkish matter has shaken the confidence of the world in Europe and European securities. Even some Englishmen themselves are saying, 'What's the use. If no one will back us up we had better let nature take its course.' This means that Europe instead of checking its bad leaders, has given in to them. The Turkish victory is a victory for the inflationists of Europe. The backing down of England is defeat for the sound money interests of the world. This is bound to have an unfortunate effect in this country and cause higher interest rates. The cheaper interest rate period in which we have been entering may temporarily be checked and even money may be scarce for a short time. As the immigration restrictions cause an inflation in wages, and the tariff an inflation in prices, so this Turkish episode may cause an inflation in interest rates.

"These three factors may cause temporary inflation. None of them, however, affect the long swings of business which are determined by fundamental economic law. So far as the long swing goes, we are in a period of deflation which will continue for some years to come. Over the long period of years the tendency of wages, prices, and interest rates will continue downward. However, it is very likely that this tendency has temporarily been checked and we shall probably have all the ear marks of a period of prosperity during the next few months."

General business as reflected by the index of the Babsonchart is at the highest point in over two years. Activity this week is but 6 per cent below normal as compared with 7 per cent below last week and 19 per cent below a year ago.

WET SWAN SONG IN REVENUE RULE

The policy of the Internal Revenue Department regarding liquor dealers whose business has been wiped out by the Prohibition Act is outlined in a decision received from Washington yesterday by Collector Rex Goodcell. The ruling is in the nature of a wet swan song.

In the case in question a big wine dealers made a reduction in his income tax return for absolescence of good will in his business which had depreciated on account of dry legislation.

The Revenue Department holds that:

"The principal asset of the taxpayer's business is good will attributable to his knowledge of conditions peculiar to the wine business, in which he had no competition, his sales being made to less than 20 customers. The good will claimed can not be separated from the taxpayer and is of such a personal character as to be without value as an assignable asset and accordingly fails to meet the most essential test to sustain a claim for obsolescence of good will."

The decision points out that for the year 1918 and for thirty years prior thereto the appellant was a broker, acting as agent for wine growers and selling only to the largest wholesale dealers. The sales which started from nothing, increased from year to year until in 1917 the sales reached immense proportions. In 1918 with prohibition threatened, sales decreased 40 per cent and in 1919 with prohibition assured, sales had dropped to 5 per cent.

The appellant however, was able to do a considerable volume of business between April and November 1920, but it was with one big customer, all of his other patrons have liquidated and gone out of business prior to January 1920. This one customer was preparing to go out of business, too. In 1921 the wine man made a few scattering sales but they did not pay for his office expense.

In reaching its decision the Revenue Department says that there is unquestionably no doubt that due to the enactment of anverse legislation the apellant will ultimately be forced to abandon his business, and it is apparent that the natural processes of the prohibition laws have finally accomplished what they set out to accomplish, although by reason of temporary liberal administration of the law the surface indications were not finally extinguished until 1921. The good will built up by the appellant during the long period he was in business, in the opinion of the committee, would be of no value in carrying on a lawful business not affected by prohibition legislation. With one exception his former customers are out of business, and with his experience and knowledge restricted to the commercial traffic in wine it is exceedingly doubtful that the good will developed would be of value in carrying on a legitimate enterprise.

CARBONIC GAS AIDS DIGESTION

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16.—Benefits to the human system of bottled carbonated beverages are not derived entirely from the food properties, furnished by sugar and fruit juices, according to Dr. W. W. Skinner, assistant chief, bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture, and one of the outstanding authorities in America on beverages. The carbonic gas in these bottled drinks is exceedingly valuable to the human system, in that it is a digestive stimulant.

"The value of these beverages is not confined entirely to the food properties furnished by sugar and fruit juices," Dr. Skinner asserted. "The carbonic gas, while it is not to be classed as a food, is exceedingly valuable in the functioning of the human system. The dietetic value of carbonated drinks is recognized by such well-known authorities as Cushny and Sollmann, who comment favorably upon their use. Carbonic gas acts as a digestive stimulant, increasing the appetite and absorption of the food, especially the liquids. The drinking of carbonated beverages results in a rapid absorption of the water in which the carbonic gas is dissolved, and is generally followed by an augmented secretion of urine. For this reason carbonated waters are used when a rapid flushing of the tissues is desired.

"Solis Cohen is authority for the statement that carbonic gas excites an increased peristaltic action of the stomach and intestines, as well as an increased secretion of the intestinal juices, exerting also a stimulating effect on the central organs of the circulation and upon the nervous system generally. These observations clearly indicate the dietetic value of beverages charged with carbonic gas."

WEST BROADWAY TO HAVE NEW MARKET

Keeping pace with the rapidly growing population of Glendale this city, "the fastest growing city in America," is taking on a business air that has brought many men of money here to establish themselves in business. The latest big venture which will shortly make a bid for the patronage of the Glendale public is the Broadway Central Market, composed of wide awake and live business men, recent arrivals in Glendale, who will open the market for business on Saturday, October 21, 1922, at 217 West Broadway.

The large store room has been especially fitted up for this big market, and modern equipment is being installed in every department with the object in view of giving the public the best possible service.

The Meat Department will be in charge of Fred Tribolet, a live wire business man from Phoenix, Arizona, who has put in an up-to-the minute sanitary market, and will sell the best meats and products obtainable. Long experienced in the meat business, with plenty of capital and appreciation of the fact that Glendale demands the best, Mr. Tribolet will give Glendale a market which will be a credit to the city. The Bakery and Delicatessen will also be operated by Mr. Tribolet, and the best in everything will be sold. Von's Grocery will have the Grocery Department. This concern now operates 29 stores in Los Angeles and has a buying power that enables them to sell groceries at very close prices. The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE EX-KAISER'S MEMOIRS.
With apologies to the Los Angeles Times.

Chapter I.—My Love for Bismarck.

When the heavy burden of running the German empire and, as far as possible, the world fell upon my shoulders I was but a youth. Trouble arose immediately when Bismarck tried to make himself a sort of youth's companion. He was determined to be the boss, a characteristic almost unknown in the German race.

I was immensely fond of Bismack; in fact, we were on such terms that I called him Biz for short, while he called me any number of things, some short and some long.

I realized that he was a man of great ability, a student of world affairs with a genius for protecting the best interests of the Fatherland, and a chancellor who was respected and feared by the great powers of Europe. Consequently I decided to get rid of him at once.

I have been misrepresented as being ungracious to Prince Bismarck, as opposing him vigorously, and as finally forcing his resignation quite ruthlessly. People who have spread this report are liars. I had the greatest respect and the highest reward for Bizzie. I would have suffered the amputation of my imperial mustache rather than have injured his feelings by word or gesture.

The facts are these: I summoned him to the imperial suite one morning, offered him the best chair in the house, pulled it from under him as he sat down (this was an old trick of mine that never failed to amuse me. I later sold the idea to Weber and Fields) and nearly died laughing as he fell on his back. Bismarck, much to my surprise, became very sore. "ich lieber sweiner schnitzel!" he roared which translated means, "What a fine old can you've grown up to be!" This was more than I could stand. I summoned the imperial bouncers and had him thrown out. Nobody who can't take a few hard tumbles is fit to be connected with the German government. Look at me!

Chapter II.—The Bismarck Herring Episode.

Early in my reign—I think it was about a quarter to five—I was invited by the Czar of Russia to come over and have lunch with him. I immediately accepted. I have always been intensely democratic and there never was a time I wouldn't have lunch with anybody who invited me unless I had reason to believe I might be slipped the check. I had fasted for twenty-four hours, so I could order everything on the Russian menu, and was about to start when I got a letter from Queen Victoria, my grandmother, insisting that I have lunch with her. She was a firm believer in the "See England First" idea. I showed her letter to Bismarck, who immediately went into a great rage. He insisted that it was an attempt at British interference with the German foreign lunch policy.

Chapter III.—The Russian Caviar Affair.

The following week I got aboard ship and sailed from Berlin to St. Petersburg. The czar was in no condition to receive me on account of a vodka party the night before but he sent a sleigh after me and I was soon at the palace. It was a splendid dinner. The czar slept all through it. I wished to bring up the question of Russian support in case of war with England. Rapping on the table with a bottle, I asked, "Nick, could I count on your help in case of hostilities with Great Britain?" He did not answer. I never saw a man in such a stupor. I repeated the question, demanding "Nickie, may I count on you?"

Jumping to his feet, he answered:

"Yes, we have no bananas!"

Naturally I was very much pleased. I had accomplished all that I had set out to accomplish. I received great credit upon my return to Berlin.

Court Characteristics.

During my reign I had many chancellors. In fact they were harder to keep than cooks. I cannot recall them all, but I remember in particular Count Scheutzenfest, who served me well in that position for upward of five days. Scheutzenfest was eminently fitted for the post of chancellor. He was one of the best pinochle players in the Fatherland, and could tap a keg with rare skill.

He was also extremely witty. On busy days when serious affairs of state were demanding attention it was my custom to walk in the garden with him for hours at a time exchanging funny stories. He told me the one about the Irishman and the Jew. I thought I'd die laughing. Many of my constituents rather hoped that I would.

Prince Harugari is another chancellor I recall distinctly. I selected him from a list of over 340 candidates as the man supremely fitted for the office. He had a wonderful head of hair and could play the bass viol beautifully. In making the appointment I was influenced by the recollection that he once rode a bicycle directly into a saloon in Bremen, whipped a seidel of beer from the bar, and left without dismounting. Germany had too few men thus endowed.

It has been said that I did not get along well with my chancellors. This is untrue. Three ex-chancellors once sent me a barrel of head cheese beautifully engraved with the words, "We can never forget you." Another, during a discussion with me about the Sultan of Turkey, remarked feelingly, "He's a good ruler, too."

Chapter V.—The Hof Brau Case.

My part in the famous Hof Brau crisis has been grossly misrepreted. In the spring of 1889 conditions were very serious. England had just sent another ultimatum to Ireland, the Turks had been thrown out of Europe for ever, the Czar of Russia had refused publicly to eat hasenpfeffer, Gibraltar was on the rocks, Grover Cleveland had offended the Fatherland by his policy toward German bands, my eldest son was staying out late nights, the wife had malaria, and I didn't feel any too well myself. Immediate action was demanded.

I was pacing the office one afternoon trying to recall a telephone number, when Fritz Blatz, one of the secretaries of state, rushed in excitedly, waving a paper and crying, "Sign! Sign!" I looked at my chancellor for advice. He was busily absorbed in an attempt to solve a missing word puzzle in the Zeitung.

"What'll I do?" I asked him.

"Who?" replied the chancellor.

I saw there was no use disputing this man of iron will and I signed the papers. The next day scandal broke all over Europe. I had signed a testimonial for a patent medicine advertisement which subsequently appeared in over 700 newspapers. It bore my photo under the caption, "He Suffered for Years Without Relief."

Chapter VI.—The Von Hokum Incident.

A great many people have wondered why I dismissed Von Hokum, one of my best known chancellors. The impression has spread abroad that it was because of the fact that he proved himself untrustworthy, assailed my policies behind my back, plotted against me and nearly drew me into a war with Russia. This is without foundation. The facts are these:

One evening in Gus's cafe we were playing pinochle. He said, quite innocently, "I meld 450." I said, "How come?" He answered, putting his cards on the table, "Double pinochle, among other things, excellency."

There was nothing for me to do but dismiss him.

EVOLUTIONS OF TUB REVEALS TRAGIC DETAILS

Have you ever heard the story of the evolution of the bath tub? Well, here it is:

Seventy years ago, President Millard Fillmore created a furor at Washington when he ordered a bath tub installed in the White House.

Recently eight bath tubs flew over the same White House dome in as many airplanes.

The tubs were being transported from a distant army maneuver field to a certain barracks in Virginia.

This is probably to emphasize the fact that merchandise made of steel and iron is as easily transported by air as the United States mail.

The big fact, however, is that only seventy years ago they were prosecuting people for attempting to introduce bath tubs and their use, and today if you visit someone whose home does not possess the type of tub necessary to your health and pleasure, you merely phone and have them fly your tub over in the afternoon.

The verified news item above referred to was probably read by thousands of readers of the daily papers and commented upon as an unusual feat, which is true; but in measuring such gigantic strides of progress as the flying planes, automobiles, etc., they frequently fail to appreciate that other activities of human endeavor have proven equally as significant or more so to the welfare of the human race.

The field of sanitation and hygiene has demonstrated that wholesome, sanitary cleanliness in private living is not only necessary to better physical well being, but that it has an economic value.

If cleanliness has an economic value in the preservation of property, what value must it have if applied to the human body?

Constructive mechanical history records no greater achievement in the progress in fixtures and fittings for sanitation purposes and their consequent aid to healthful living than has taken place within the past twenty years, and America is foremost of all the nations in this regard.

The benefits to health derived from daily bathing, aside from its pleasure, have been so completely demonstrated that it was a matter of natural progression to secure the completed fixtures that are now in use in the average home today.

Bathing is not only an individual problem, but a public health problem, as cleanliness is one of the greatest essentials to health.

The United States government in its army and navy requirements demand the daily use of shower bathing, realizing that the shower refreshes the nervous system, counteracts fatigue, rendering the individual more alert and efficient.

The functions of the skin are permitted full sway and healthful comfort is the result.

The medicinal benefits of the daily bath having been fully established by the best scientific authorities of all countries, it only becomes necessary to secure modern, good quality equipment that the fullest effect may be obtained.

In this industry as in most others there are types of fixtures that imitate in appearance, but do not compare in operation to the high standards necessary and are sold on a price basis only and unless a careful selection is made the installation of such equipment is usually a disappointment and a direct menace to the health of an entire family.

Your merchant plumber is an equipped sanitary engineer with all of the necessary information of his craft.

DAMAGED

THE REFERENDUM

The California Real Estate association has issued a statement denying the widely-published reports that the association is on record in favor of the State Water and Power act.

According to the research bureau of the association the board of directors of the California Real Estate association at the quarterly session in Los Angeles on March 25th unanimously endorsed a resolution condemning the State Water and Power act in no uncertain terms. Since that time the publicity department of the association and its official magazine have devoted considerable attention to the reasons why the act should be defeated.

At the meeting of the board of directors at Huntington Lake on October 7th, the previous stand of the association was endorsed and the opposition of the association to the Water and Power act reaffirmed in strong terms.

"The California Real Estate association resents the misrepresentation of its stand by persons interested in the state Water and Power act," says the statement. "The real esate men of California are interested in all measures which affect property values and the taxable resources of the state. They consider the State Water and Power act a menace to the continued development of the state and a direct threat at property values from Eureka to El Centro. They believe the present method of strict public regulation of privately-owned utilities not only operates to the best interests of the state but offers substantial promise of continued development of utility service as needed by the people.

"The association believes the Water and Power act is a blow at the credit of privately-owned utilities and a most serious danger to the credit of the state of California. Eastern capital to the extent of more than a billion a year must be directed to California during the next ten years. Anything which affects the credit of our state or of our industrial organizations will make it more difficult to secure this capital and will affect correspondingly our plans for developing our resources and asking new settlers to the state.

"For these reasons we are opposed to the state Water and Power act."

VOLLEY BALL TRY-OUT FOR HIGH GIRLS

This is try-out week in volley ball for the girls at Glendale High. Tonight sophomore girls picked from the different class squads and perhaps a few others not picked who want to take the test will have a tryout and it is expected 18 girls will be selected, the best nine to constitute the first team, the second nine the second team. Other classes are to have tryouts as follows: Tuesday, Freshman girls; Wednesday, juniors; Friday, seniors.

Next week, Monday, inter-class games will begin. Freshmen and sophomores will play the 23d, juniors and seniors the 25th, freshmen and juniors the 26th, sopohomores and seniors the 30th, freshmen and seniors November 1, sophomores and juniors November 2. This will be a round-robin tournament to determine the winning team.

Girl tennis players of Glendale High who have been on school teams before, have organized a tennis club. It has started with five charter members, Orrel Hester, Kathleen Campbell, Fredericka Marshall, Alexandria Bagley and Doris Moyse. They have decided to meet every Monday and will arrange for a round-robin tournament which will furnish material for membership, not more than five or six candidates being received. It is hoped in this way to build up a strong club, composed of the best tennis players from which a school team can be picked.

Miss Florence Knight, head of girls' gym work at Glendale High, announces that every Tuesday during the 7th period, she will have a class for girls who want to learn to play tennis.

Now that the courts have been divided between the girls and the boys, the girls will be able to have the use of them about half the time.

SHARKS STOPPED BATHING.

BEAUFORT, N. C., Oct. 16.—Following the capture of one of their number, a school of playful sharks have departed from North Carolina waters, to which man-eaters are infrequent visitors. The sharks ranged from nine to twenty feet in length, and numbered six. The school followed men-laden boats through an inlet into one of the sounds, and then threw a fright into the guests at a summer hotel by taking up their abode within 75 yards of the shore.

Bathing was automatically suspended. The fish were ravenous. After daring fishermen had caught one of the sharks the rest disappeared. They were believed to have strayed from Caribbean or Florida waters.

HIGH BOND DRIVE MAKES BUSY DAY FOR STUDENTS

The special committee of three appointed by the cabinet of the student body at Glendale high and composed of Gordon Bartow, Percy Jewell and Harry Bennett to promote the high school bond election next Friday had a busy Saturday. They had a big program to cover, which included arranging for speakers before the various clubs and organization that are to have meetings the coming week; also making preliminary arrangements for a high school parade to be pulled off some day before the election, designed to direct attention by means of banners, transparencies and spectacular displays to the congestion at the school.

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD COMMUNION

At the Presbyterian church Sunday night a praise service was given, as is the custom for the evening of the communion Sabbath. Both the services of the day were attended by very full congregations.

The evening program, provided by the choir director, Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts, included two excellent numbers by a male quartet, Mr. Huddy, Mr. Riggs, Messrs. Will and Harry Marple, a soprano solo by Mrs. Vera McKee Neighbors, a finely rendered violin solo by Dorothy Armstrong Welcome and two duets by Rev. and Mrs. Keith L. Brooks—these in addition to the work of the quartet choir.

The sermon by Rev. Louis Tinning, assistant pastor, on "Two Estimates of Life," dealt with the history of Abraham and Lot in their differing choices of home and life and the differing results.

Ruskin Writes New High Yell Volume

Permission was granted by the high school cabinet at its regular meeting on Thursday, to David Ruskin, Glendale union high school yell leader, to publish a book containing all school yells. The book will substitute one that has been in use at the school for a number of years and will sell for 5 cents.

$1000 FOR A GOOD MOVIE IDEA

People who believe they have the "great American photoplay" lurking in their systems are now being given an opportunity to demonstrate that fact. In connection with the Los Angeles Times, Cecil B. DeMille, producer of Paramount Pictures, is offering $1200 in prizes for an idea for the picture to succeed the one he has now in the making.

Mr. DeMille's offer is unusually wide-spreading. A story is not wanted, just an idea, a theme. It may be expressed in three words and may not go over 300. It must be in the hands of the DeMille contest editor, Los Angeles Times, before November 1. The only persons barred are employees of the Los Angeles Times, the Famous Players-Lasky corporation and their families.

Local residents are afforded an equal opportunity to get in on the four prizes, the first being $1000; the second $100, the third and fourth $50 each. All that is necessary is to send in an idea as stated above.

"I am confronted with a paucity of really new, original ideas," says the producer of "Manslaughter," "Saturday Night," and other famous pictures. "I feel that somewhere, somebody has a real idea, something entirely different from anything as yet developed. It isn't necessary to be a trained writer to win first prize, a ditch digger's few words will stand an equal chance with the erudite expressions of a college professor."

THE RIGHT TO CHANGE SABBATH

Speaking on the subject of "Is It Right?" Dr. H. C. Funk, pastor of the First Lutheran church, raised the question yesterday, "Is it right to worship on the Lord's Day?" That is, is it right to change from the seventh day to the first day of the week? Our seventh day advocates tell us that we are not the true church of God because we worship on the wrong day. The trouble with our friends is that they do not distinguish between the ceremonial and a moral law. This is a ceremonial law, and one day with the Lord is as holy as another, in other words—all days are holy. Jesus Christ healed on the Sabbath. He and his disciples plucked corn on the Sabbath day.

The fact is that every day in the week is used as a day of rest by some religious body. Christians generally worship on Sunday, the Lord's day. The Greeks worship on Monday, the Persians worship on Tuesday, the Assyrians worship on Wednesday, the Egyptians worship on Thursday, the Turks on Friday, and the Jews on Saturday. Paul says: "Stand fast, therefore, in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." Our seventh day advocates want us to go back under the yoke of bondage again.

God rested on the seventh day after the work of Creation. But this was only the shadow of the new day that would follow the greater work of redemption. This greater Sabbath is called the Lord's day in the book of Revelations. This is the day that was instituted by the Lord Jesus Christ himself after his glorious resurrection from the dead, and His disciples followed this practice by meeting on the first day of the week, on the Lord's day.

But I want to ask another question, "Is it right to visit on the Lord's day?" It is wrong to go visiting on Sunday if by so doing you keep someone away from the house of worship. Jesus visited on the Sabbath day, but He first taught His followers the Word of God, and the people were there to hear the instruction. After the service Jesus was invited to take dinner at a Pharisee's house, and the Saviour accepted the invitation. Yes, if you go to church and a neighbor invites you to dine with him, accept the invitation, or invite some one home with you. But, hear me, it is absolutely wrong to stay at home, and neglect the worship of Almighty God, to get up a big dinner for some friends.

Another class lounge around the house all day and do nothing; but is it right? If it is right for them, it is right for all of us, and if we should all stay at home, what would become of the house of God? Do this and you stop the preaching of the Word, which is the power of God unto salvation; you stop the Sacramental Word, Holy Baptism and the Lord's Supper. Do this and we would all become heathen.

When a man breaks the fifth or the seventh commandments, "Thou shalt not kill," or "Thou shalt not steal," they arrest him, and put him into prison; but when he breaks the third commandment men say he is a good man. God said: "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy." If it isn't wrong to break that command, then it isn't wrong to break any of the other commandments.

The man who lounges around home all day and does nothing, is a good deal like the ox that is fallen into a pit, he needs to be pulled out of the lazy habit into which he has fallen. He may have plenty of brains, but he does not use them wisely, for there is great profit in waiting on the Lord. If he will wash his face, put on clean linen and betake himself to the house of the Lord, he will go away refreshed, and nothing will rest him more, or fit him better for the work of the week than the spiritual exercises of this one hour. Life without the Lord's day would be like a desert.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

LITTLE THINGS

Just the flicker of a candle, and the darkness melts away;
Just a little bit of sunshine and the night is turned to day.
Just a little bit of gladness and the sorrow is all gone,
Just a little bit of courage and the spirit's up and on.
Life's a bit of shine and shower, now the cloud and now the sun,
Dawn and noon and dusk and dream, and now the race of it is run,
Little tasks for daily doing, little words for hope and cheer.
And the friend I love is near me, and his need is now and here.

Just a little gleam that reaches through the mist along the shore,
And the ship that neared the breakers finds its way through storm and more;
Just a hand clasp warm in trouble, such a simple little thing,
But it cheers and warms and comforts, that the saddened heart may sing
Just a little touch of kinship, just an understanding word,
Just a smile of friendly greeting from a soul with friendship stirred,
These the things that life has need of, and they may see mighty small
But the time we have to stay here is so little after all.

Just a little thought that's kindly, just a little word that's glad,
Just a little song that's cheery when the passing hour is sad;
Just a little bit of yearning in a lonesome heart somewhere,
And a little bit of friendship from the store we have to spare
Stills the grief and quiets longing; just a kindly little deed
Gilds the passing cloud with sunshine, so, my brother, pray take heed
For the days we have are fleeting and the friends we have are dear,
And the need for joy is pressing and the time is now and here.

ON BUYING STARS FOR BENCH DUTY

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—After about the toughest time a youngster ever had breaking into the big time, Frank 'Lefty" O'Doul, the Pacific Coast league star, is to get his chance next season with the Boston Red Sox.

O'Doul did two years bench duty with the New York Yanks without getting the ghost of a chance and he had wasted for him two seasons at a very valuable time.

All of the big league scouts were after Lefty three years ago when he was starring with the San Francisco club in the Pacific Coast league. The Yanks grabbed him and although he was a great hitter, a flash on the bases and a mighty promising pitcher, he didn't move off the bench in 1920.

The Yanks sent him back to San Francisco in 1921 and he again burnt up the league when the strings were jerked on him and he was brought back to New York.

He sat on the bench all this season, although the Yanks at times might have found a winning southpaw pitcher a valuable asset when Sam Jones was making such a poor showing.

Huggins wanted to make an outfielder out of him, but soon lost all track of him, apparently.

Every scout who has seen him pitch says he has world s of stuff and if he hasn't lost himself entirely by his imprisonment in the dugout he may turn out to be one of the big pitchers in 1923.

* * * * * * *

George Stallings is a demon for punishment. He is going to Philadelphia to manage the Phils next season. If he does anything with that layout he will have to work another miracle like he did in 1914 with the Boston Braves. There is no question that Stallings is a smart baseball man, but it will take more than brains to lift Baker's motley crew away from the shadow of the cellar.

* * * * * * *

When Squire Charley Ebbets sets out to do a little house cleaning he doesn't go about it in half-fashion. The Brooklyn owner asked waivers on seventeen of his men and most of them probably will go to the minors, unless Connie Mack wants to add to his collection.

Olson, the veteran shortstop of the club, who has patiently stood the years of razz, is said to be booked for the management of the Kansas City club in the American association.

If James K. McGuinness, well known New York sport writer, had a vote in naming the man most valuable to the New York Yankees, Harry Frazee, owner of the Boston Red Sox, would have gotten at least one vote along with Pipp, Meusel, Schang and other players who received mention.

Among the 1922 crop of college players who graduated into fast company three are almost sure to make good.

The Braves copped two good young pitchers, Tim McNamara, who came from Fordham, and Harry Houlihan, a southpaw youngster from Middlebury college.

Fred Mitchell, pilot of the Braves, says that both are good but that Houlihan is a real find.

The Giants have a flock of youngsters, but the best seems to be Fred Maguire, former Holy Cross second baseman. In personal appearance and all his actions he is a regular carbon copy of Eddie Collins, the White Sox star.

The National league champions also have Walter McPhee, former Princeton infielder, but he needs schooling. Clinton Blume, a former Colgate pitcher, also is very promising.

WASHING WOOL

"One of the easiest methods of loosening wool from the pelt is by using a lime water solution," says Prof. H. Hackedorn, head of the animal husbandry department of the State College of Washington, replying to the query of a Hampton, Ore., sheep raiser.

"Make a saturated solution, allow the lime to settle, pour off the clear liquid and soak the pelt in it till the wool loosens. You will get better results if you use warm water.

"If you have only a small amount of wool to wash, I suggest that you make a strong solution of common laundry soap and water, and wash the wool much as you would clothing. I have known some people to use a washing machine, and they stated that it was very satisfactory. Hot water will work much more satisfactorily than cold. After washing the wool in the soap solution, rinse it three times."

ROLAND SQUARE IS BUILDING

Seven mule teams started today to put on the finishing touches of Roland Square. The rapid sale of this fine subdivision has been one of the marvels in Glendale real estate development, nearly two-thirds of the large tract being sold out.

Twenty-one houses are to be built at once on as many lots, and other lot buyers are making preparations to build. The addition of 10 acres to the new city park and its improvement has had something to do with the sale of Roland square. The proposed new high school site on the west side is also worth considering in buying this property.

Well now that is not my idea of an owl," said a casual visitor in a taxidermist's shop, looking at one sitting on a perch in a rather dark corner. "Isn't it?" replied the bird stuffer, dryly, peering up over his spectacles. "Well, it's God's, anyhow." The owl was a live one.

COURT SHOPS HAVE BIG CROWD AT OPENING

Those who visited the Court Shops Saturday night had the pleasure not only of enjoying excellent music furnished by Kelly's Shrine orchestra, but of witnessing and participating, if they desired, in a very nice little informal dance at the north end of the court, which had been sprinkled with corn meal and the pavement thus polished for the tripping feet of the dancers.

As a house-warming and welcome to the public on the part of the Court Shop colony, it was a great success. The visitors enjoyed it, made purchases, and will come again. The shops made some new friends and had a delightful chance to play host and hostess in a real social way. All the shops were decked with flowers, mostly dahlias, to match their color scheme and the whole affair was decidedly festive.

BROOKS DISCUSSES 17TH CHAPTER OF JOHN

Leading the discussion of the 17th chapter of John, before the Men's Bible class, Sunday, Keith L. Brooks, of the Bible Institute, spoke in part as follows:

The entire 17th chapter of John consists of the intercessory prayer which our Lord offered not long before He went to the cross, for His disciples and all who should believe upon Him through their testimony. It is wonderful that we should be permitted to hear the outpouring of His desires for His own as they were compressed into these last moments. It is inconceivable that this prayer could have been cunningly framed by human author. There is a divine insight and discernment of the needs of man which he could never be aware of himself. In its sevenfold perfection it covers all our deepest spiritual necessities. We notice that there is no Amen at its close and perhaps this is because it is a type of the perfect intercession which He is still offering before the Father for all who have come unto God by Him.

He begins by telling His Father that He has finished the work given Him to do: "I have given unto them thy words which thou gavest me, and they have received them." Some would have us believe that we do not have the words of God in the Bible, but simply His thoughts. But how could we be sure that we had His thoughts unless He had imparted fitting words? Not one of us would care to leave it to our best friend to express our thoughts in some very important matter. On this statement of Christ stands the whole fabric of Christian creed. The gospel has its power in the fact that the Father gave to the Son and the Son to His disciples, words that correctly express His thought for man.

The first of seven petitions for needs is that believers might be preserved. "Keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me." If you are a saved man He has made this prayer about you. It must be answered, for no prayer of His can fail. If Christians would nestle down and believe in Christ's prayer they would have some real rest and their souls would be flooded with love to Him. The trouble with many Christians today is that they do not really believe much of anything beyond the fact that salvation is possible through Christ.

His second petition is for the satisfaction of His people, that "they might have His joy fulfilled in themselves." This joy, He explains, will depend largely upon meditation on what He has spoken for their comfort.

His third petition is that believers might be fortified in the world. "I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but keep them from the evil." His people are the salt of the earth, therefore they must not be removed from contact with the world. If ever men are brought to God it must be through their instrumentality. The believer's daily prayer, "Deliver us from evil," is thus met by the prayer of Christ Himself.

The fourth petition is for sanctification of His own, which simply means that His desire is for believers to be set apart from the things of the world and the flesh, and this, He shows, will be accomplished through His word, for "thy word is truth." Some modernists tell us that His word is a revelation that contains truth but so mixed with error that it takes trained experts to distinguish. Jesus here contradicts this modern notion.

His fifth petition is for the unification of His own, that "they may be one as the Father is in Him and He in the Father." This is not a mechanical unity such as a church federation, but a unity of life in Christ and God, a true fellowship that may exist between those who have received Him. He is not asking for a unity that would have to be brought about at the expense of truth. From this kind of a federation He would save us, for He calls to separation, not federation.

The crowning petition is for the believer's glorification that he may at last be where Christ Himself is in heaven. Even the happiness of Christ Himself will not be complete until His elect are present to share His glory with Him.

Love may make the world go round, but money lubricates the machinery.
